READ THIS FIRST

This guide is educational content about food. It is not medical advice, not a diagnosis, and not a treatment for arthritis or any other condition. It does not replace medication, and nothing in it should cause you to stop or change a prescription.

INTERACTIONS THAT MATTER

- Turmeric and ginger can increase the effect of blood thinners such as warfarin. Culinary amounts are not supplement doses, but the interaction is real. Every affected formula in this guide is marked.
- Tart cherry juice carries a meaningful amount of natural sugar. If you manage diabetes, treat it as juice, not as medicine.
- Ginger can lower blood pressure slightly, which matters if you already take something that does the same.
- If you are pregnant, breastfeeding, or preparing for surgery, ask before adding concentrated turmeric of any kind.

WHEN TO STOP READING AND CALL A DOCTOR

- A joint that is hot, red and suddenly swollen.
- Pain that is severe, or clearly worse week after week.
- Fever alongside joint pain.
- A joint that locks, gives way, or will not bear weight.

None of those are a stiff morning, and none of them are a job for a recipe.

Day 91

What maintenance actually looks like.

THREE PHASES

WEEKS 1-4 · ESTABLISH

One new habit a week, nothing removed. The goal is that four things happen without thinking, not that everything happens at once.

WEEKS 5-8 · CONSOLIDATE

Batch cooking enters, daily tracking leaves. This is where the week starts running itself.

WEEKS 9-12 · MAINTAIN

Movement, rotation, and the rehearsal for the bad week that will eventually arrive.

PLATEAU OR FAILURE

At week six, people who are not sure whether anything is working tend to quit. This is how to tell the difference without guessing.

- Read weeks 1 and 5 in the log side by side, not from memory. Memory is useless here.
- A plateau: the numbers improved and then stopped moving. That is normal, and week 8 adds to it.
- A failure: the numbers never moved at all across five weeks of consistent weeks.
- Consistency check first — if the evening formula happened three nights out of seven, that is not a failed plan, it is an unfinished one.
- If it genuinely never moved, the profile guide is the next step, not more of the same.

THE WEEKLY LOG

Five questions, two minutes, once a week. Print twelve copies.

- Minutes from waking until your hands work normally.
- Number of days this week with a good afternoon.
- Did the evening formula happen? How many nights out of seven.
- Anything that clearly made it worse.
- One sentence: how this week compared to last.

THE BAD WEEK

It will happen — a holiday, an illness, a fortnight of work that eats everything. This page is written now so you are not deciding anything then.

- Do the evening formula and nothing else. That is the whole minimum.
- Eat from the freezer. That is what it is for.
- Do not restart the twelve weeks. Continue from the week you were on.
- One bad week is one bad week. Only skipping the restart makes it a quarter.

DAY 91

Most people keep three things and drop the rest: the evening formula, the Sunday hour, and oily fish twice a week. Everything else was scaffolding — useful while it was needed, and no loss when it goes.

BEFORE YOU GO

One change at a time. The most common way this fails is doing all of it in week one and none of it in week three. Pick the single formula that fits your evening and make it until you stop thinking about it — then add the next.

YOUR REFUND, PLAINLY
